The Bow Valley Call

Devoted to the Up-Building of Gleichen and the Development of the District Generally

Year VI., No. 14 | GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1913 | Per Year $1.50

FIVE CARLOADS GLEICHEN CATTLE BRING BIG PRICE

On June 20th, the H2 Ranch, near Gleichen, owned by Mrs. F. A. McHugh & Sons, sold in Calgary, five carloads of very choice heavy beef steers. The price realized was $8.25 per cwt. The Swift Canadian Company Ltd. were the purchasers. These are said to be the best cattle seen in Calgary yards for some years; they were shipped to the company's new plant at Edmonton; and it is understood the beef is for use on the C. P. R. dining cars. For this class of trade a large rib with a with a good cut is most desirable. These cattle were trailed from the ranch to Calgary, a fifty mile trip, and averaged the splendid weight of 1,445 pounds. The catch weight of one steer was 1,965 pounds—almost a ton. The price obtained is a record for Alberta.

Weed Inspector Says Farmers Doing Well

Assistant Chief Weed Inspector Grant spent a couple of days this week in the Gleichen district with Inspector N. N. Hayes, and when seen by a reporter, Tuesday evening, said he thought Mr. Hayes had used excellent judgment in his work and that he was pleased to learn that so far it was not found necessary to lay a single complaint. The farmers took very kindly all the advice given them and appeared to be doing their best to eradicate the weeds. He said he would like to impress upon all that it was not the desire of the government to place burdens upon those afflicted with weeds more than they could bear, but to see that all were doing their best and advise them regarding noxious weeds. There were many farmers in the country who really did not know the majority of the weeds, and once the inspectors pointed them out these farmers were usually thankful for the information.

Speaking of the different weeds Mr. Grant said he was of the opinion that the Canadian thistle was even a greater enemy of the farmer than the much-talked-of stinck weed, as it seemed to spead much more rapidly here. He explained that the winds carried the thistle seeds for miles, and said he was more surprised to see the number of thistles along the irrigation canal. In some parts along the canal and the laterals there were more thistles than he had ever seen anywhere on a similar tract of land. He said that while the inspectors would be obliged to draw the attention of the company to the conditions and ask for the removal of all weeds, he would point out to the farmers that these weeds were brought down the ditches from the farms above, and he sincerely hoped that every farmer would see the great advantage it would be to each individually to keep free of all weeds. It was the aim of the government to take up the weed question while the country was still young, and enforce the laws with all reason and avoid the great hardships the farmers were now contending with in the eastern provinces. It was his opinion that if Alberta farmers would buy only seed grain that had been passed as such by the judges at the seed grain fairs the weed trouble would be greatly limited.

NAMAKA NEWS

The recent rains here have put the crops in fine shape in this district.

A Miller, the new manager of the Namaka Farm reports that spring wheat is already beginning to head out.

Morris and Julian Adler of Birmingham, Ala., are at the Namaka Farm taking stock and arranging for the turnover of all stock and machinery to George Lane.

The Hammer Hill baseball team visited Namaka on Saturday evening and played an interesting game, but the home team proved victorious by a score of 11 to 8. After the game a Cinderella dance was held in R. M. Johnston's hall, all regreting that it was Saturday night and 12 o'clock came so soon.

A football team from Gleichen is expected here on Friday evening—tomorrow night—to play the Namaka team. A dance will be given after the game to which the ladies are especially invited.

Easom-Burne

On Wednesday evening of last week, June 18th, Mount Pleasant Farm was the scene of a very happy event, when Miss Jessie Francis Burne and Rev. Cyril Easom were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev Mr. Haggith of Calgary, over twenty friends and relatives of the young couple being present.

The bride was given away by her eldest brother, Robert, and her sister Ada acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by Mr. Walter G. Burne, and Miss Anna Burne proficiently played the wedding march. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Easom were heartily congratulated and good wishes in plenty expressed for their future happiness, who lead the way to the dining room where the wedding dinner was served, the tables being beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion. Mr. Haggath submitted the only toast in which he expressed most suitably the sentiments of all present, to which Mr. Easom replied.

Afterwards the entire party adjourned to the parlor and spent a pleasant evening in songs and speeches. Mr. and Mrs. Easom left on the early morning train to spend their honey-moon at Banff, from where they will go to Cayley to make their future home.

Mr. Easom is well known in Gleichen as he was in charge of the Methodist Church work for over a year, while Mrs. Easom is still better known here, having made this her home for the past seven years and was a very popular young lady, taking an active interest in all church work.

They were the recipients of many beautiful presents among them being the following:

Gravey ladle, Miss Convey; vase, Miss M. Goolerham; book, Rev. J. Lee; gold embossed salad silver set, T. Shaw; cruet stand of sterling silver, Miss Larkin; carving set, J. Gibson; silver bread plate Geo. Evans; silver cake plate Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Henderson; cut glass bowl, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Yates; Alladin incandescent lamp, Mr. and Mrs. McEwen; set of silver spoons, P. Ferguson; axminister mat and glass dishes, Mr. and Mrs. Bray; silver meat fork, Miss Davies; silver spoon, Mr. Wilson; cuserole, Mr. Peters.

Agricultural School

W. J. Elliott, dean of the Olds Agricultural School, writes the CALL as follows:

The Department of Agriculture of the Province of Alberta have established agricultural schools at Vermillion, Olds, and Claresholm, and will open these schools for instructional purposes on November, 1st, 1913. The schools are for the purpose of assisting young men in stock judging, feeding and management. Competent men will also take up matters pertaining to soils, and the various crops that may be grown successfully in Alberta. In addition to this, a very practical course in blacksmithing and carpentry work will be given. Everything that will be taught will have as a direct object the giving of assistance to the young men in the very practical things pertaining to an ordinary farm. In addition to the course that is to be given along agricultural lines, there will be a Domestic Science course given for young ladies. We wish to state emphatically that the Domestic Science work is not designed to teach young ladies how to do fancy cooking, but the purpose is to teach young ladies how to handle the ordinary things in the ordinary home, so as to make the home table as bright and wholesome as possible.

As your town and vicinity will come under the jurisdiction of the Olds Agricultural School, we should be very pleased indeed to hear from any young man or lady in the vicinity who might be interested in either one of the courses mentioned above.

As these schools are to be under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture of the province, they are, of course, free, with the exception of the board and a few incidentals that may be necessary in connection with the course. This course will likely last from five to six months, and we hope to give the young men a thorough and practical knowledge of farm work.

Waterworks Bylaw Past

The vote on by-law No. 47 resulted in its passing by a vote of 30 to 3 on Monday. There was little real interest shown in the voting for this by-law, as the total vote was less than one third of the ratepayers entitled to vote, but it was equal to the interest shown in Calgary on by laws and towns much larger than Gleichen. Here, however, there is usually much more interest shown than this, but undoubtedly the reason of so small a vote was that the majority of the ratepayers did not properly understand the by-law. Realizing this the ever obliging secretary took the precaution to write and post up a brief statement in the polling booth, which read as follows:

"The money is being raised for the purpose of paying off the balance of the money due on the water works, machinery, etc. The debt amounting to $3,600 on which accounts the town has given notes, bearing 8 per cent. interest. The balance will be spent in sinking another well and making a few connections."

It is not often the CALL criticises the Council, but we would say that had this explanation been made earlier the vote would have been much heavier and, we believe, favorably. Many of the ratepayers had the impression that all the money had already been spent, and had they known that a portion of it was to be used in sinking another well they would have readily been on hand to vote for it.

False Economy

The manager—The senior partner wants us to find a berth for that son of his. He says he doesn't expect the house to pay him anything—so there'll be a saving here.

The superintendent—I don't see it. Of course we'll have to hire a man to do the work.

That, said the futurist, pointing pointing proudly to the canvas with which he had just finished, is my attempt to interpret the infinite.

What did the infinite ever do to you? asked the innocent bystander.

An elderly pair were making their first visit to a New York playhouse.

Well, Sarah, remarked the old gentleman, at the conclusion of the first act, don't you think we'd better be a leaving?

Why, no, Hiram! The show ain't half over yet

Well, it says on this here program that three days elapse between the first and second acts, and I'm durned if I want to set here that long.

Visitor—What was the matter with the man they just brought in?

Doctor—Stuck his head through a pane of glass.

Visitor—How did he look?

Doctor—His face wore an injured expression.

Lady—Why, you naughty boy, I never heard such language since the day I was born.

Small Boy—Yes, mum; I s'pose dere wuz a good deal of cussin' de day you wuz born.

Brown—The facial features plainly indicate character and disposition. In selecting your wife, were you governed by her chin?

Jones—No; but I have been ever since we married.

Keen Mind

First Clerk—If you feel sick why don't you ask the boss for a day off?

Second Clerk—I'm afraid he might realize how little I'm needed here!

Now, Elmer, said a teacher of the juvenile class, what is the meal we eat in the morning called? Oatmeal, was the prompt reply.

A Famous Comedian

Arthur Roberts, the well-known comedian, in his early days was a humble clerk by day, and at night kept London in merriment. His fellow-clerks never imagined for one moment that the comedian everyone was talking about was the quiet youth who sat amongst them. Roberts enjoyed the situation, and perplexed the office by sending tickets with Mr. Arthur Roberts' compliments.

At last his musical work became so heavy that he had to resign. One of the clerks ventured to ask if he had got another situation. Oh, yes, I have an evening job. That won't bring you in much money, laughingly calculated the clerk; you had better stay on here with your good wages.

But Roberts did not think so, and casually mentioned that the evening's work brought him about $200. Then of course, he had to divulge the secret that he was no other than the great comedian.

Minard's Liniment used by Physician

A friend once wrote Mark Twain a letter, saying that he was in very bad health and concluding:

Twain wrote back—Yes, rheumatism and St. Vitus dance.

Fleeced

Brown—I got mixed up in a real estate deal last week.

Browne—Did you?

Brown—Yes, they did.

Absent-Minded

Nellie (calling to her sister)—I'm going to make some lemonade, Mary. Where is the squeezer?

Mary (in a brown study) — The squeezer? Oh, he hasn't arrived yet, but I'm expecting him any minute.

Teacher—John, can you tell me what is meant by a steward?

John—A steward is a man who doesn't mind his own business.

Teacher—Why, where did you get that idea?

John—Well, I looked it up in the dictionary, and it said: A man who attends to the affairs of others.

Belle—But do you think you and Jack are suited to each other?

Nell—Oh, perfectly. Our tastes are quite similar. I don't care very much for him, and he doesn't care very much for me

Red Tape In France

A remarkable story of what official red tape can accomplish comes from a seaport in Brittany. It appears that the sanitary department had an old plug for stopping up pipes which had become useless through age. The chief of the department accordingly applied to the minister through the official channels for permission to incur the necessary expense to replace the plug.

The minister after long reflection asked if the plug really couldn't be used a little more, and three witnesses had to certify in writing that it couldn't. Finally the minister notified the department, still through the official channels with all the usual delays, that a new plug might be bought.

Then the question of what to do with the old one arose. The chief of the department through the official channels, asked if he might give it to the port authorities to be sold for the benefit of the fishermen. After thinking it over the minister said it could be done, but the port authorities refused the present on the ground that it was not worth the cost of accepting it.

It was then necessary to inform the minister by an official memorandum signed by the two chiefs of the refusal, and to ask permission to burn the old plug. But the minister's ideas of economy revolted against the sacrifice. Couldn't it be used for something else? he asked—through the official channels. Two experts were then engaged to certify that the unhappy stopper was good for nothing at all. Only then did the minister authorize the destruction of the implement, on condition that the chief sent an official certificate of the destruction. This was done.

It might be added that when it was new the stopper was worth exactly 30 cents.

An old lady, travelling for the first time in a large city, saw a glaring sign on the front of a high building which read: The Smith Manufacturing Company.

As she repeated it aloud slowly she remarked to her nephew: Lawsy mercy! Well, I've heard tell of Smiths all my life but I never knew where they made 'em.

Mountains Resemble Women

Mountains might easily be compared with women. They are as infinite in variety, they attract, they repel, they take savage delight in coldly repulsing the advances of their admirers. Yet nevertheless the appeal of them both is eternal and as omnipotent as any spell the gods have cast over men. Further, a man has only to learn that a woman is dangerous to find a delightful elusive fascination in her. It is like charm in the conquest of inaccessible peaks which sets the blood of the climber astir, which acts as a Circe-like spell in augmenting the death roll of the mountains. You may prove this from any history of Alpine casualties. Each grim tragedy of the mountains whets the appetite of an ever-increasing army of adventurous spirits. Mont Blanc, monarch of the European giants, can be taken as an illuminating example of this curious trait in human nature. Each fresh accident on Mont Blanc serves only to engender the call of the mountains in greater hosts of climbers. To such people new casualties advertise but one fact; the mountain has won the tussel with some poor fellow or other, and they set their teeth determinedly, and vow that a like fate shall not overtake them. As a rule it doesn't. Yet their excessive caution against one wily enemy blinds them to others of greater danger. Some of these climbers' stories are chronicled in stone behind the white church at Chamounix. There you may see a grove of bleached crosses. They speak eloquently of the battle between man and inexorable nature.

Well Known at Eton

Lord Lytton was seated one day at dinner next to a lady whose name was Birch, and who, tradition says, was beautiful, if not over-intelligent. She said to his Excellency:

Are you acquainted with any of the Birches?

Replied his Excellency—Oh, yes, I knew some of them most intimately while at Eton; indeed, more intimately than I cared for.

Sir, replied the lady, you forget that the Birches are relatives of mine.

And yet they cut me, said the Viceroy. But, and he smiled his wonted smile, I have never felt more inclined to kiss the rod than I do now.

Mrs. Birch, sad to say, did not see the point, and so the gossips have it, told her husband that his Excellency had insulted her.

A young woman failed to pass her examination for appointment as teacher in the public school of a small town.

Her mother was terribly disappointed and decided to interview one of the examiners.

I am sorry, madam, the man said, that your daughter did not pass her examinations, but there is nothing I can do about it. You know, madam, that no one is to blame but herself.

She to blame! exclaimed the woman wrathfully. Well, sir, perhaps you don't know that them examiners asked her questions about lots of things that happened years and years before she was born.

Of an old Scottish reporter in attendance at one of Lord Rosebery's meetings, this incident is told: Lord Rosebery was very solemn as he approached his peroration, and the meeting, under the glamor of his eloquence sat hushed in concentrated attention. All at once a drop of moisture detached itself from the glass roof and fell with a splash on the bald head of the old reporter. Wha's that sputtin? he demanded in a loud and indignant Scottish accent. The audience burst into such a roar of laughter that it was some time before the noble lord could proceed. This story affords an illustration of the indifference to the most exalted flights of our political orators which familiarity often breeds in the old and seasoned reporter.

THE BIRD AND TREES

Tree Life Depends on Protection of Insect-Eating Birds

Each woodpecker in the United States is worth $20 in cash, when the value is estimated on the value of the good that this bird does to trees, says the Manchester Union. Other birds are worth sums proportionate to the good that they do. The nuthatch creeper and chickadee are worth from $5 to $15, varying with the locality and the condition of trees and crops. The downy woodpecker is also the relentless enemy of the codling moth, an insect that damages our apple crops to an extent of $12,000,000.

In the war between the insects and the trees millions of dollars are being spent each year by tree owners who know that insects have increased so rapidly of late years that their trees must be protected. The locust and maple trees are preyed upon by the bag insects; elms are sprayed in order to kill the elm beetles, while borers are slaughtering the hickories.

A well known business man of New York, who commutes from and to New Jersey recently received a reprimand from his better half with reference to his alleged neglect of his children.

Since we have lived in Jersey, complained the wife, you have gone back and forth to the city every day. You have seen absolutely nothing of the children.

I am sorry, said the business man, but what's the remedy? When I leave in the morning they are not up, and when I return in the evening they are in bed.

That's true, said the wife, but she added after a moment's reflection, you might at least send them a souvenir postcard now and then.

A young man who persisted in whispering loudly to the young woman who accompanied him to the symphony concert, telling her what the music meant, what sort of a passage was coming next, and so on, caused serious annoyance to every one of his immediate neighbors. Presently he closed his eyes and said to his companion: Did you ever try listening to music with your eyes shut? You've no idea how lovely it sounds.

Thereupon a gentleman who sat in the seat in front of the young man twisted himself about and said gravely:

Young man, did you ever try listening to music with your mouth shut?

Prior to the present war Adrianople had a population of 70,000, half of whom were Turks, the rest Bulgarians, Armenians and Jews.

DOCTOR SAID HE HAD DIABETES

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CLEARED OUT EVERY TRACE OF IT

That's Why Mr. David Heon, of Nicolet Co., Quebec, is Recommending the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy To His Neighbors.

St. Wenceslas, Nicolet Co., Que., (Special)—"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills because the doctor told me I was threatened with diabetes. After taking ten boxes I was again examined by the doctor, and he told me that all trace of diabetes had disappeared."

This is the statement of Mr. David Heon, well-known and highly respected here, and he is only one of many in this neighborhood who have found a new lease of life in the great Canadian Kidney remedy.

It is cures such as this that have given Dodd's Kidney Pills their reputation. They are now known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the remedy that never fails to cure kidney disease, no matter where or in what form it is found.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure diseased kidneys. The reason they cure backache, dropsy, rheumatism, neuralgia, diabetes, urinary troubles and Bright's disease is that all of these are either diseases of the kidneys or are caused by disordered kidneys failing to do their work.

Her Predicament

Sarah Bernhardt was narrating reminiscences of the stage to a group of friends.

Mash notes, you call them, she said, laughing. Well, I received a very funny mash note once in a small town of you Far West.

You are adorable, my mash note ran, and I'd have preferred to send you orchids, but in this one-horse town I am reduced to molasses candy, of which I am forwarding a two-pound bag. Will you take supper with me tonight? If you consent blow your nose on the stage and I will understand.

Mme. Bernhardt laughed again.

And the worst of it was, she said, I had a bad cold at the time and was afraid to blow my nose all the evening.

Ten More

He—I have saved up ten thousand dollars. Will you be my wife?

She—Oh, Mr. Jones, this is too sudden. Save up another ten thousand.

Helter—Holmes gets a gigantic salary from that mining corporation. Skelter—Able to locate gold mines, is he? Helter—Not much. Able to locate stock purchasers.

A—You don't seem to have any life in you. Is there nothing or nobody over which you can enthuse?

B.—Nothing at all. I once became enthusiastic over somebody, and a short time afterwards she became my wife. That was a sad warning to me to avoid enthusiasm.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house

Visitor—What are you in here for?

Prisoner—For flattery.

Visitor—Nonsense!

Prisoner—Not at all, sir. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. I am in here for imitating another man's signature.

A Scotchman, wishing to know his fate at once, telegraphed a proposal of marriage to the lady of his choice. After passing the entire day at the telegraph office he was finally rewarded late in the evening by an affirmative answer.

If I were you, suggested the operator, when he delivered the message, I'd think twice before I'd marry a girl that kept me waiting all day for my answer.

Na, na, retorted the Scot. The lass who waits for the night rates is the lass for me.

Mr. McCorkle was showing some visitors over the house. Arriving at the nursery he remarked: This, gentlemen, is the bawl-room.

To some it seems a crime,
For downright usefulness I'll take
The hen's lay every time.

Small Tradesman (gently)—I see you have transferred your custom to my rival across the street, sir.

Mr. Highhead (with dignity)—Yes, sir, I have.

S.T. (more gently)—May I ask, sir, what I have done to deserve this?

Mr. Highhead (with added dignity)—You sent in your bill!

Jones—My wife and I suffer from alternate insomnia.

Brown—Alternate insomnia! What is that?

Jones—Whichever gets to sleep first keeps the other awake all night.

Figuring Up

Can we get along on my salary?

Let's see, said the girl. We'll need theatre tickets, flowers, candy, Taxi-cabs will be an item, and your club expenses will amount to something.

Don't overlook clothes, rent, food, light and fuel, called her father from the next room. They are items that always crop up.

Brown—I've got an excellent plan for getting rid of duns.

Green—Ah! That so?

Brown—I have. Never fails.

Green—Then, old fellow, you must let me into the secret, for I'm worried to death by 'em.

Brown—Well, I've tried it several times of late, and I find the man never comes back again.

Green—Aye, aye, what do you do?

Brown—I pay him.

Costiveness and its Cure.—When the excretory organs refuse to perform their functions properly the intestines become clogged. This is known as costiveness and if neglected gives rise to dangerous complications. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will effect a speedy cure. At the first intimation of this ailment the sufferer should procure a packet of the pills and put himself under a course of treatment. The good effects of the pills will be almost immediately evident.

Chatty Waiter (glancing out of window)—The rain'll be here in a minute or two now, sir.

Customer—Well, I didn't order it. I'm waiting for a chop.

Little Boy (with swollen face)—Oh dear, I wish I was grandpa, or else the baby.

Mother—Why?

Little Boy—Grandpa's teeth are all gone, and baby's hasn't come yet.

Customs Officer—Have you anything to declare?

Mr. Bonanza (from America)—Wal I declare that this is the worst passage I've ever had across.

Should Worry

I think she is losing her voice.

Possibly; but I'm afraid it will last through this performance.

The Solar Plexus a Great Nerve Centre

With the single exception of the brain itself, the solar plexus is the most important nerve centre in the human body.

Situated just back of the stomach and close to the spinal cord, the solar plexus supplies the motor nerves to the vital organs. Injury to or weakness of the solar plexus consequently means incapacity of the vital organs of the body. This explains why a blow which reaches the solar plexus means helplessness to the person receiving it.

These nerve centres all demand an enormous quantity of good, rich blood and, failing to get this, the nerve cells are starved and depleted, and fail to supply vital energy to the digestive and eliminating organs.

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in revitalizing and reconstructing the broken-down nervous system is due to the fact that it supplies nutrition to nerve cells through the medium of the blood stream.

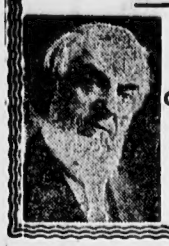

Weakness of the stomach, failure of the liver and kidneys to filter the blood, inactivity of the bowels and feelings of fatigue and discouragement usually arise from an exhausted condition of the nervous system. The nerve centres, such as the solar plexus, have not the nerve force to work the machinery of the body.

The most natural treatment imaginable is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and its benefits are lasting, because it actually rebuilds the wasted and broken-down nerve cells.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

EVIL OF SATAN'S MONSTROUS LIE

Pastor Russell Says Satan Is Father of Lies—Quotes Jesus' Assertion.

Harrisburg, Pa., -Pastor Russell's address to-day on Satan's great lie was a remarkable one in several ways. He really told his audience that they had all been believing Satan's lie. And he really told spirit mediums that they were the mediums, not between the dead and the living humans, but between humans and demons—the fallen angels. And yet the Pastor said all this in such a kindly, sympathetic manner that surely none could take offense. Evidently no offense was intended, but merely the presentation of what the speaker assuredly believes to be the teaching of the Bible.

He opened his address by noting the fact that the common conception respecting Satan's appearance and whereabouts is wholly false, built not upon the Bible, but upon human tradition, human imagination, handed down from a darker day. The Pastor believes in a real, personal Satan, and believes him to be Beelzebub, the prince of demons. In other words, he believes the Bible to teach that Satan is an angel of higher rank than ordinary angels and possessed of superior powers. Hence he outranks those who are with him, and perforce is their leader, or prince.

That Satan is not in some far-off place with his fallen angels, torturing millions of the human family in furnaces, the Pastor made very clear. He showed that nothing of the kind is taught in the Scriptures. On the contrary, they teach that Satan and his host, since the Deluge, are under restraint, confined to Tartarus, our earth's atmosphere. They cannot wander around the universe, as before. Satan is very literally, therefore, "the prince of the power of the air," and his associate demons are members of this aerial, or spirit power, malevolent as respects everything that is of God and righteousness, and especially the foes, therefore, of such of humanity as renounce the works of the flesh and the Devil, and seek to walk in the footsteps of Jesus.

The lie was told in Eden. The serpent was used as Satan's tool. Satan himself was originally the only rebel. His associates, the fallen angels, were not with him in his rebellion until sometime afterward. The Pastor would not say that the serpent could not speak under a satanic impulse or obsession or hypnosis, but he inclined to believe that the serpent spoke by its actions. He quoted the proverb which declares that "Actions speak louder than words." He thought that this was probably the way in which the serpent spoke to Mother Eve.

God had forbidden our first parents to eat of a certain kind of fruit in the Garden, without telling them why. It was simply a test of their obedience, their loyalty to Him. He told them that disobedience, disloyalty, in this matter would result in their death. He said nothing about eternal torment. The wilful sinner, according to the Bible, is to die, to perish as a natural brute beast. God's favors are for only those who will abide in His Love. "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The serpent, by eating of the forbidden fruit without dying, but on the contrary being the wisest of all the beasts, seemed to give the lie to God's word. Through the serpent Satan declared to the woman, "Ye shall not surely die." Through the serpent, Satan also told Mother Eve that God evidently was trying to keep herself and her husband in ignorance, blindness, darkness; and that it was time for them to awake, to assert their rights, and to make the best of themselves, by eating of the forbidden fruit. Father Adam knew better, but when he found that his dear wife had eaten and thus had come under the sentence, or curse, of death, he was so discouraged that he determined to die with his wife, loving her so much that he would rather die with her than live without her.

Satan's object in telling this lie, in deceiving our first parents, was made very clear by the Pastor. From other Scriptures he pointed out that Satan for some time had been saying to his heart that he would like to have and to exercise still higher powers than those which he possessed. He would like to be "as the Most High." He would be a sovereign, who might work out his own plans. He had no thought of supplanting the Almighty, but had the pride to suppose that he could manage the universe better than God could, and that if he had a small section under his control, he would demonstrate this and put the Almighty to the blush.

When man was created, Satan's opportunity for exercising his ambition seemed to have come. Man possessed a power which the angels had not. He could propagate his own kind, and was commissioned to fill the earth with a population and to bring it to Edenic perfection. Satan saw his chance. By capturing the first pair and making them his subjects and alienating them from the Almighty, he would capture a race, and eventually be the spiritual prince, or ruler, of this world. It was to carry out this program that he deceived our first parents and started his great lie.

When Satan perceived that his subjects were perishing and becoming imbecile, mentally and physically, he thought to circumvent the Divine penalty by introducing fresh vigor, life, into the human family. This he did by seducing some of the angels. Originally angels apparently had the power of materialization—of taking human form or any other form that they might choose. Satan's program deflected some of these from their loyalty to God and to their nature, and induced them to materialize and live as human beings and rear human families, by taking human wives.

The Pastor pointed out the Scripture which described this deflection of the angels. This, he said, must have progressed for centuries, according to the Bible account. The angelic "sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair, and they took unto themselves wives of all that they chose." There were born unto them children, "men of renown," intellectually, and giants physically. The virility of the angels grafted upon the human stock, produced a race in some respects superior, but in others very inferior. Begotten and born in opposition to the Divine will and in a rebellious attitude of heart, these giants were brutish, devilish.

Soon the earth was filled with violence. The impaired race of Adam, enslaved mentally and physically, were rapidly being demonized also. So far as the record goes, only Noah and his family were of pure Adamic stock and loyal to God. Then the time came for the Deluge, which God had foreknown, and had withheld until this time. In it God swept away both the progeny of the angels and the impaired Adamic stock. None of those who received their life-principle from the angels were of Adamic stock. None of them, therefore, have any share in the redemptive work of Jesus, and hence none of them will have any part in the resurrection and restitution, which God has promised shall be accomplished by the glorious Messiah during the thousand years of His Messianic Kingdom. They merely perished—were blotted out in the Deluge as natural brute beasts, as St. Peter declares of all wilful sinners of Adam's race.—2 Peter 2:12.

"The angels which kept not their first estate"—who followed the leadership of Satan—were cast to Tartarus—our earth's atmosphere—and there are restrained for a time that they may not roam throughout the universe. (Jude 6.) They are restrained also for a time from materializing in human form—Satan likewise. Thus Satan's plan for empire failed. But still rebellious in spirit, he took up a new line of battle against God. He would be content to use humanity as his tools, even though they were imperfect and dying. They should be his slaves, and he would embitter them against God, and defeat God's plans on behalf of humanity.

Satan realized that the secret of his power with mankind must lie in his deception of them. If men knew that they were being led captive into sin at the will of Satan and his fallen hosts, they would rebel against him. In order to hold humanity as far as possible his slaves, he realized that he must seduce them by fostering ignorance and superstition. He must alienate them from God. Therefore he caused them to think of God as a terrible being, unworthy of their love and confidence, one whom they might fear, but could not worship in spirit and in truth. As a basis for this great scheme of human ensnarement and obsession, Satan used his original lie. For now four thousand years he has sought by every means in his power to instil that lie into the minds of all humanity in every land. He has his demon host to co-operate with him in making light appear darkness, and darkness appear light, to deceive mankind.

How wonderfully he has succeeded the whole world is witness to-day. Notwithstanding the fact that man's five senses tell him that the dead are dead, the masses believe to the contrary—that the dead are more alive than before they died. Notwithstanding the consistency of God's Word, "Thou shalt surely die," and the inconsistency of Satan's lie, "Ye shall not surely die," the whole world is enslaved by Satan's lie. The Pastor declared that the Book of the Revelation pictures the condition of the world, in declaring that all nations will be made drunk with the wine of false doctrine.

While we must acknowledge that some spirit mediums are merely frauds, said the Pastor, we have every reason to believe that many of them are very sincere, but deceived. Many of them thoroughly believe that they communicate with the dead. Only the Bible can save any one from that delusion. It alone shows us that a demon host is co-operating with Satan, to prove his lie and to enslave mankind and to separate them from the truth of God's Word.

Witches, wizards and necromancers were forbidden in the land of Israel; and yet there were some there, and influenced such as were not fully in harmony with God. King Saul, we remember, sought the witch of Endor. The demons made certain things appear on the retina of the witch's eye. She describe what she saw to King Saul. He recognized it as a description of the Prophet Samuel. The witch also communicated to Saul what purported to be the word of Samuel, and what was really the word of demons.—1 Chronicles 10:13.

Satan's lie is still potent in the world, hindering millions from the knowledge of God and the appreciation of His Word. Frequently the spirits get such control of the minds and bodies of those who yield their wills, that they not only suffer obsession, but sometimes become absolutely possessed by these demons. Under such circumstances, they are generally considered to be insane, although doctors know that many of these have no mental disease, but are controlled by outside influence.

The Pastor urged all to accept the testimony of God's Word—that death is the penalty for sin; that the death of Jesus is the Redemption-price from the curse of death, and that the resurrection of the dead, the raising up again to perfection of life, is the salvation of the Bible. Not only would this help us to come nearer to God, through a better understanding of the Bible, but it would help to free us from the various snares of the Adversary.

Furthermore, he found in the Bible intimations that in the very near future these evil spirits would be permitted to break over their restraints, and that all not properly fortified by the truth on the subject would be liable to be specially ensnared by Satan's lie. He would not prophesy what this trouble would be, nor just how it would come, but he did forewarn his hearers. He urged all to come out from the influence of Satan and his slanders of the Almighty and his misrepresentations of facts, and to enlist under the banner of Jesus as servants of truth and righteousness.

Jesus declared Satan to be the Father of lies. This corroborates the thought that never until Satan started the course of sin was there any need for lies. All of God's dealing with the angels and their dealings with each other have been along the lines of simplicity, truth, purity, holiness. The first use for a lie was when Satan determined to exalt himself as the god of earth. It was to alienate our first parents from the Almighty that Satan lied to them, assuring them that disobedience to God would not bring the death penalty that God had declared. Ever since then, sin, abounding, has given temptation to misrepresentations, bearing false witness, etc.

Selfishness was the foundation for the first lie. And selfishness continues to invite falsehood, even amongst those who see clearly how despicable falsehood is. And each falsehood seems to call for another to help justify it, and to cover up the selfishness which prompted it. No wonder the Apostle urges those who become Christians to put away lying, saying, "Lie not one to another." As Satan stands as the Father of lies, so God, on the contrary, stands as the Father of Truth.

Our Lord not only said that Satan is the Father of lies, but intimated that the lying spirit is of Satan, saying to some of those who opposed the Truth, Ye are of your father, the Devil, if his works ye do. "He was a murderer from the beginning and abode not in the Truth." (John 8:44.) On the contrary, God, the Father of Lights and the Father of the Truth, is the personification of Light, Truth, even as Satan personifies darkness, error, falsehood.

The conflict between light and darkness, truth and error, has progressed for more than six thousand years. God's Word is always the Truth. Jesus prayed, "Sanctify them through Thy Truth; Thy Word is Truth." Satan's falsehoods are always injurious; hence the promise is that when Jesus, the Prince of Light, shall take His great power and reign, He will bind Satan, the Prince of Darkness, that he may deceive the nations no more.

Here we have another corroboration of the fact that the great deceiving power amongst mankind for six thousand years has been a spiritual one—Satanic power. No wonder that under this domination of Satan we have had what St. Paul calls a reign of sin and death. No wonder the Bible declares that from the Divine standpoint the world has been in darkness! "Darkness covers the earth; gross darkness the heathen." Jesus came, and brought light into the world. But men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil, because sin has gained such a hold upon them, because it is easier for them to remain under the blinding influence of Satan than to come under the blessed light of the Gospel of Christ in the present time. It costs something now to be a follower of the Prince of Light, an opposer of the Prince of Darkness, whose realm is world-wide.

How glad we are that the morning of the new Day is so near! As Jesus explains (Matthew 13:43) "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the Kingdom of their Father." Himself and His elect Church, gathered from every nation and denomination, will constitute the glorious ruling Power of the New Dispensation. Jesus likens His Kingdom to the sun. As the sun scatters the darkness of earth and drives away its mist, so will the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in its beams and scatter all the ignorance, superstition, falsehood, and bring to all mankind a true knowledge of God. The light of the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth as the water covers the great deep!—Isaiah 11:9; Habakkuk 2:14.

Daring and Credulity.

Martin Frobisher's adventures in search of the Northwest passage form a curious mixture of daring and credulity. With the piratical instinct of the true Elizabethan, Frobisher was tempted to forego exploration in quest of phantom gold. One of his sailors had brought home a piece of black pyrite, which the goldsmiths of London declared to contain no gold, but which an Italian quack valued highly. The Italian's advice being preferred, Frobisher went out a second time to Greenland's icy mountains and brought home 200 tons of rubbish that much tarnished the credit of latter days.

Breaking It Gently.

VAPORIZED METALS.

An Invention That May Give Us Gold or Silver Flecked Garments.

Delicate laces in silver or bronze or gold for the trimmings of a gown, gorgeous paintings in the rich colors of polished metals, brass coated balloons and scores of other strange articles are made possible by a little device that sprays hot metal particles so that they will stick on a fabric and yet will not burn it. For many years attempts have been made with more or less success to spray metal successfully, and a Swiss engineer seems to have discovered the secret.

His metal spray machine is used much as is an ordinary atomizer or almost exactly as an artist uses an air brush, and it is about the size of an atomizer. The wire or strip of the metal, such as gold, that is to be used is placed in the device, and gas, fed by a flexible pipe from a tank, heats the end of the wire or strip of metal to a white heat. Another flexible pipe from a tank of compressed air supplies power for blowing tiny particles of the white hot metal on the material to be coated.

It has been found that the metal particles grip well on the fabric they hit and almost seem to weld together, yet they do not set it afire, and coatings have been successfully applied to wood, paper, lace, cloth, celluloid and even explosives as well as to other metals. It is possible to apply a very thin coating by means of this machine.

So striking are the effects that sprayed metals make possible for gowns that the first use of the new device is likely to come in dress goods and trimmings, but many uses of more commercial importance have been suggested. The inventor has coated radiators with brass, lined cans with tin, copper coated metal for ships' bottoms, covered moving picture screens with aluminium and cables with zinc.—Saturday Evening Post

SKY SOUNDING BALLOONS.

Rise Till They Burst, Then Parachute Down With Their Records.

The limit to which manned balloons can ascend is about 30,000 feet, but a sounding balloon lately sent up in Italy at the University of Pavia reached a height of 121,000 feet or nearly twenty three miles.

At regular intervals, simultaneously in all the large countries, the weather observers make tests of the upper air by means of sounding balloons. These balloons are usually about six feet in diameter and are filled with free hydrogen gas. They carry an instrument called a meteorograph, which registers and records the altitude, temperature, humidity and wind velocity. Since the balloons rise with great speed and almost in a vertical line the ascents resemble somewhat the descent of a lead line from a ship in the ocean, and this resemblance accounts for the name "sounding balloon." Eventually the balloon reaches a height above which it cannot go. If the gas bag is of silk it collapses. If it is of india rubber it explodes. In either case a parachute descends, bringing the recording apparatus with it.

The greatest height attained by one of the balloons in the United States was at Huron, S. D., on Sept. 1, 1910. That ascent was 30,400 meters or a little less than nineteen miles.

Wherever the sounding balloons have been used, whether near the equator or in northern latitudes, the records have shown that after six miles above the earth the temperature no longer drops rapidly as the instrument ascends, but at times becomes stationary.

The lowest temperature during the recent remarkable flight was 70 4-10 degrees below zero, F., at a point twelve and one-half miles high.—Youth's Companion.

How We Have Grown.

In 1790 the population of the country was 3,925,625, in 1910 91,972,266, the growth being in the last ten years about 16,000,000. The area in 1790, in square miles, was 417,170, in 1910 over 3,000,000. Number of miles of railroads in 1790, none; in 1910, 250,0000. Number of postoffices in 1790, 75; in 1910, about 60,000. The population of New York city in the year 1790 was 49,401; in 1910 it was 4,766,833. Thus it will be seen that New York city alone in 1910 had a much larger population than the entire country had in the year 1790.—New York American.

Presidents and Terms.

Some people call President Wilson the twenty-seventh president, others the twenty-eighth. The discrepancy comes from counting Mr. Cleveland twice, since his two terms were not consecutive. Mr. Wilson is the twenty-seventh man to fill the presidential office and the twenty-third who has been elected to it, but the presidential term on which he has entered is the thirty-second.—Youth's Companion.

Anti-earthquake Exhibition.

At Messina, Sicily, an exhibition of arts, crafts and industries allied to anti-earthquake building construction is to be held next fall. It is to be under the auspices of the ministers of public works and of education of the Italian government. A large area of ground has been assigned for the exposition and a local committee formed, with the Hon. S. Cutrufelli as chairman.

Historic Old Room.

The senate chamber in the old state house, Annapolis, Md., the room of national historic interest as the scene of the resignation of General Washington's military commission, has been fully restored, and it is the most accurate restoration ever achieved in this country. The event with which the room is always associated took place on Dec. 23, 1783.

Good Form

Introductions.

Such a usual thing as introducing one person to another is so often done in a bungling, unsuccessful wrong way that one cannot speak too often about this very necessary social occurrence.

There are two or three points to emphasize. First, remember that the simplest, most straightforward introduction is the best; second, do not mumble your words; make clear the names of the persons introduced by saying them slowly and distinctly. Do not rush through an introduction as if you disliked it or were ashamed of it.

A gentleman always asks permission of a lady to bring a stranger to be presented. After securing this he presents the gentleman to the lady. This order is the general rule. The woman's name is used first except in the case of an elderly person or one of note, in which case the order is reversed.

The accepted form is "Miss Blank, may I present Mr. Wood?" or "Miss Blank, I wish to introduce my friend Mr. Wood, who is very eager to meet you."

Never make a mistake of leading a lady around a room and introducing her. Bring the ones already present to her in twos or threes and gradually make her acquainted. Needless to say, a man is always taken around to the ladies in a party and presented to them.

A younger woman is introduced to an older one. An unmarried one is always presented to a matron. The one to whom an introduction is made has the name mentioned first, the one introduced coming next.

The distinctions are not so finely drawn in the introduction of men to each other. Of course any well known man is considered first. It is deemed an honor to be introduced to him.

When you introduce your relatives be sure to remember that every one does not know that your aunt is married. The words "my aunt" are not sufficient. Supplement them with the name by which strangers should know and address her. If your mother has been married twice or if your married name is different from hers give it, so that no embarrassing mistakes will be made.

So much for the introducing of persons. Be sure to speak so that there will be absolutely no misinterpretation on the part of strangers who meet each other for the first time.

The graceful introduction is a test of social poise. There is really no reason for the awkward attempts at it that we encounter every day. Indeed, the successful introduction is the unusual thing. Why this condition exists is attributable to the ease with which an introduction is made. It seems so simple that you do not give it a thought until circumstances force the role of introducer on you.

Well, you owe a good introduction to all of your friends. Practice the forms given until they come naturally, unhesitatingly and redound to your credit.

Kitchen Etiquette.

Woman has always, since the beginning of time, devoted hours to developing good form in her appearance. She usually acts upon the desire to do the things necessary in her social career in the best form. Even in athletics, in tennis or golf, she sees the importance of learning the rules of the game and getting the best results by playing in form. It is true that she often strives to be neat and orderly and have some system in her management of the household. But it is the rare woman who has carried this to the point of performing her household tasks with this same good form. Take the kitchen work, for example. Form here has been defined as a "certain deft, finished way of handling utensils and economizing materials of all kinds," says Katherine Garland.

As a former chef to royalty says: "There is a way to stand at the table, erect and well poised and just far enough away so that your apron does not brush against its edge and accumulate a line of spots. Form is more the result of thought and practice than of any instruction. But just try for once to see how many dishes you can cook while keeping your apron spotless, using the newest possible utensils and making, so far as you can help it, not a single unnecessary movement."

You may think this advice of use only to the woman who does her own work or to the maid. But even if you are only superintendent of your own kitchen and pantry you buy the utensils and have voice in their arrangement. How greatly do you concern yourself with the newest inventions in household utensils? Do you keep an eye on advertisements or see what your neighbor is doing in that regard to learn if you are neglecting any opportunities? That is what a man does in connection with his business or profession. You would much prefer to shop at a place which does business under the most modern system of conveniences. And if you go to a doctor who is using awkward and antiquated instruments your confidence in him is slightly shaken. So would a maid prefer to work in that kitchen which is regarded as an important part of the house and which is supplied with up to date necessities and if possible, luxuries.

Namaka Notes

George Lane, the noted rancher, can now be claimed by the humble citizens of Namaka as one of our number, for he has just completed the purchase of the big Namaka Farm, which is at the same time one of the largest and one of the most valuable farms in the Canadian west or in the States, for that part. The deal is one of the largest which has been put through in the history of ranching in the west. The price paid was $250,000, and the vendors were Morris Adler & Co., of Alabama.

The ranch was formerly owned by Vic Anderson, of Calgary.

The farm as it stands is in the very best condition in every way. It is well stocked and there are at the present time 4,000 acres in crop. In all there are about 14,000 acres in the farm.

The deal is a purely personal one as far as Mr. Lane is concerned and he intends to run the farm himself. He will place his Percheron mares of which he has over 100, on the farm and will continue breeding on a larger scale than ever before.

Mr. Lane is and has been for some time the largest Percheron breeder in America, and his name is known not only in this part of the world, but all over America for his work in that connection. Most of his mares are at present at Bassano, and they will now be moved to the farm just purchased at Namaka. This great farm will give every opportunity for extending the work for which the name of Lane is so well known, and the deal may be regarded as marking a new era in the history of the district.

The baseball game at Namaka on Friday evevening proved an exciting one.

The Namaka Giants took the Harwood Whirlwinds into camp to the tune of 16 to 0. Barber proved invincible, allowing only three hits and they were well scattered. Gammon caught a great game and his good pegging kept the Whirlwinds down to one man reaching third. Shouldice and Bell played great ball for the Giants in the field and only a few got through to second safe. Boistvaine pitched fairly good ball for the visitors but the Giants found him for clean hits again and again and this with poor support piled up the big score against him. Bower played good ball for the vistors at second. Those that featured with the bat for Namaka were Gammon, Bell, Barbee and Thomson.

MacGregor and Schaffer played good ball for Namaka in the field.

Uncle Tom's, Cabin
Gleichen Opera House
Monday June 30th

That old, old story so new to present day theatregoers, "Slavery days" will be realistically interpreted, Monday evening, June 30, in Gleichen Opera House by Stetson's spectatcular "Uncle Tom's Cabin company. For this season, the members of the Stetson company were selected especially for his or her adaptability to the roles essayed. The result has been a rarely harmonious whole, it is is claimed, which has done much to add to the effectiveness of the production. The scenery, painted especially for this revival, includes a number of handsome scenes reproduced from pictures of the localities mentioned in the book, as they were at the time when the great authoress first wrote the story, more than fifty years ago. Some of the most notable of these scenes are the "Suawnee River" by moonlight, cotton fields in full bloom, the Ohio River in winter, and the escape of Eliza, carrying her child across the floating ice, the rocky pass in which George Harris made his stand against the men pursuing and protected his family, the St. Clair plantation home, the levee at New Orleans showing a slave auction, Legree's plantation, and lastly, the beautiful transformation scene, showing Eva's ascension to the Celestial City. The play has long since been public property and has been played by many poor companies until the public has come to recognize the fact that none but Manager Washburn has the one great, unequaled organization, and that is why his Stetson production always brings out the theatre-going crowd.

Rainfall the week .65 inch.

Preparations for the Calgary Exhibition are practically completed, according to reports brought back by some of our citizens who have visited that city. There has been a very large increase in the number of entries in all departments, and in the aggregate the average increase will be about 20 per cent. During the present week the exhibits have been pouring into the grounds, and by the opening day, June 30, everything will be in readiness.

From all that can be learned the special attractions for this year are above the average, and in addition are quite a departure from anything that has been presented before.

Single fare rates are offered by the railways and in addition there will be special trains from the north and south, on July 1 and 4. The local railway agent reports quite a large inquiry regarding tickets from intending visitors, and it looks as though there would be a large local contingent visit Calgary during the first week in July, as the Exhibition lasts the whole six days.

—o—

The Bishop of Calgary will hold Confirmation service at the Reserve (Canon Stockens) on Sunday, June 29, at 3 o'clotk, and will also preach at St. Andrew's, Gleichen, at the evening service at 7.30

"Laugh and the world laughs with you." Weep and you will laugh with hundreds of others, in spite of yourself, if you witness the funny antics of Topsy and the side-splitting comicalities of Marks, the lawyer, in Stetson's double spectacular production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," due Gleichen Opera House, Monday, June 30.

Oklahoma Ranch
Wild West show

Arrangements have been completed for two performances of the famous Oklahoma Ranch Wild West show in Gleichen on Friday, July 11th. Although a new organization, the Oklahoma Ranch exhibition does not depend upon conventional and commonplace features The performance is credited with being strictly up-to-date, and while the old life on the plains is illustrated in a picturesque and often thrillingly-dramatic way, especial attention is given to life on one of the great bonanza ranches of today. There is a romance about the old days on the plains that can never be destroyed: the old frontiersmen with their long hair and deerskin dress; the trappers; the overland mailcoach drivers; the wild Indians of the prairies—these all have their fascination for the student of events as well as the lover of strenuous, wholesome amusement. But after all, the modern cowboy although lacking in the generous numbers which characterized the old days, is cleverer than the cowboy of twenty years ago. There are roping feats that a few years, ago would be conidered outside the range of feasibility. There are tricks of riding-dare-devil exploits upon outlaw-horses and reckless disregard of life and limb, that have never before been equalled. All this, it is announced, is illustrated in the performaces of the Oklahoma Ranch Wild West in a way that gives the show a distinct individuality. In other words, it is declared to be "the real thing" in Wild West shows. A thrilling especially added feature of the big show is a sensational Auto Polo game in which four racing machines are utilized. This wonderful feature will be presented at every performance. The Oklahoma Ranch Wild West Day—which is expected to be a joyous holiday for the local public—will be preceeded at 10.30 in the morning by what is described as one of the most picturesque street displays ever seen in this town. The parade is over a mile long. Hundreds of cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, Mexicans, Cossacks and other interesting people will be in line. The array of great floats, and tableaux cars is also said to be remarkably effective, while nearly a dozen different kinds of music enliven the display.

THESE FARM MACHINES ARE MAKING GOOD

THE McCormick line of farm machines has endeared itself to the hearts of thousands of farmers. We handle it because we know it is the best. We handle McCormick binders, mowers, rakes, reapers, huskers and shredders, knife and tool grinders, binder twine, corn machines and a full and complete line of repairs. Call and look our line over and learn exactly what we have. It will take only a few moments of your time, and when you are in need of new farm machines or repairs for McCormick machines, you will know that we are ready to serve you. We will be only too glad to show you the McCormick line of farm machines, and we want you to call and get a catalogue. If there is any particular machine in which you are interested, make your wants known and we will see that you are supplied.

GET YOUR CANADIAN HOME FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.

You'll be killing yourself or else me, he said, if you go on like that—the thing is loaded, you know. Give it me. You'll never need to swear an affidavit to prove your ignorance of firearms, my dear fellow.

I certainly avoid them when possible, the poet admitted, they seem to go off so unexpectedly and with such a noise.

Very true, agreed Thorold, especially when handled in the style you adopt. But how did you get it into your safe?

I don't know, said Mayne, looking very puzzled. I never saw the thing in my life before.

But the cardboard box? Thorold asked.

Oh, answered Mayne, that has been there long enough.

And you never opened it? asked Thorold, looking very puzzled.

No, said Mayne, with some hesitation. I always felt a strange reluctance even to touch it. I had a feeling—oh, I avoided touching it as one would avoid touching a snake. It always seemed to me that it would be terrible to open it.

Man alive! are you clean off your head? exclaimed Thorold in great exasperation.

No, no, answered Mayne mildly and then added, seeing that Thorold was really angry and disturbed, and yielding again to the impulse of his stronger will, the fact is, well, I thought—I believe I thought—that there might be something in it to remind me of my Paris days.

Oh, I see, said Thorold, looking at him curiously, for, though he had heard tales and rumors, he could not imagine that this mild, kind, gentle little poet had ever been engaged in anything much worse than a student's masked ball.

We imitated Bauldelaire, you know, Mayne went on dreamily, it was the strange and the abnormal that we sought for; sensations at once delicate and gross. We were like swine wallowing in rose leaves; carrion crows made drunk with dew drops—you understand?

No, blessed if I do, said Thorold, staring at him; what on earth do you mean?

It was those days in Paris long ago, repeated Mayne slowly. I feared there might be something in that cardboard box to remind me of them. We did strange things in those days; we were epicures in sin. We made a god of the most delicate, the most refined sensations, and then gorged ourselves with them like gluttons at a banquet of dainties. Baudelair, you know, lived in his sense of smell; another in his sense of taste—you see we took the senses, the gross, the common sense, and extracted from them the most delicate and subtle pleasures, which in their turn, revenged themselves upon us by forcing us to enjoy them as dogs return to their vomit. Wel, as for me it was not taste or smell with me, but touch. Do you know, Thorold, in those days I made a poem of blank pages—and it was a great poem!

I suppose you mean you were a bit cracked? suggested Thorold.

No, no, the other answered, not that, but to make my poem I took papers of different shades and textures. Some I had manufactured specially. Well, the object of a poem is to arouse sensations of beauty in the mind of the reader, is it not so? In this poem of mine I tried to rouse those sensations, not by the use of words, but by the sense of touch—now you understand?

Well, I suppose I see what you were getting at, Thorold answered, but though it seems to me frightfully silly. I see nothing so very dreadful in all that. It wasn't this poem you expected to find in there, was it? he asked, nodding with a smile towards the cardboard box.

Oh, no, Mayne answered, smiling too and with rather an air of relief. No, I do not know what I expected. You see, I was pulled up short. I got into a row and was hit over the head and I spent a week expecting to die. It is rum to lie in bed and expect to die. But I got over it, and when I was better I cut all that sort of business and came back to England. No, I think I was afraid there might be something in that box to remind me of the past which I have forgotten. I have been very fortunate, he added simply, in forgetting those wild, mad days in Paris.

But still, began Thorold, if there had been?

Ah, that would have been frightful, answered Mayne with a shudder. You see, I am like two men—my present self, and my old Parisian self. Now, if I were to remember, that would mean I was going back to my old Parisian self, and that would be frightful, he repeated very thoughtfully.

Thorold shrugged his shoulders impatiently. Mayne's talk seemed to him wild and rather foolish, and yet he felt there was behind it something it was of great importance he should understand, if possible.

But as for this pistol, Mayne continued after a pause, it is as inexplicable that it should be in my safe as it is inexplicable that the forged letter should have vanished from it. Both things are blank impossibilities.

How long has this cardboard box been there? asked Thorold who had been examining it; have you never opened it?

Oh, it has been there for years, Mayne answered, and I never opened it. I always had that idea—yes, it always frightened me.

But, said Thorold slowly, the paper in which the pistol was wrapped inside the box is a page of the Times, dated—yes, dated the day of Frank's murder.

Good God! said Mayne staring; why then the box must have been opened, and the pistol put away in it quite recently!

Just so, agreed Thorold; probably at the same time when the letter was stolen. Now there is that man, Monday—could he have a duplicate key, do you think.

Fifty, for all I know, answered Mayne, but that would not teach him the combination; besides, even if he had any reason for stealing the letter why should he hide his pistol there? And certainly, he can't have a duplicate key to the new lock I have just had put on the door; after Dora's story of seeing some stranger looking out of my window, you know.

Thorold nodded, and kneeling on the floor seemed to become plunged in profound and strange thoughts, while Mayne, whose face still showed signs of some agitation, got himself a cigarette and began to smoke.

I say, Mayne, Thorold asked suddenly, you have never been hypnotised, have you?

Good gracious, what have you got in your head now? cried Mayne; do you think we have been hypnotised into seeing a pistol and a letter that have no real existence, as the Indian jugglers are said to hypnotise the spectators of their basket trick? Why I can feel the pistol.

Yes, but I had rather you didn't, said Thorold with some haste. I was only wondering—it all seems so confoundedly curious.

Hypnotism is not the answer to the riddle at any rate, replied Mayne smiling, in point of fact, one man did try to hypnotise me once, but he couldn't do it—he said my mind was too fluid, and I never kept my thoughts fixed for long enough on one subject. No, this has nothing to do with hypnotism.

For some time longer they argued and discussed the matter without getting any nearer any clue to the mystery, and at last Thorold went away.

He went over in his mind all that he knew and all that he imagined and believed, and then he thought of Joan Durant; and he remembered her clear sad eyes and how strangely her voice had thrilled his heart; and then he remembered his dead brother, and told himself this was the woman who had led him to shame and to ruin and to worse than death.

Death! We all die! Thorold muttered to himself. But Frank was shamed, ruined, dishonored; and as he wandered through the streets the people that passed him were like pale ghosts risen from their graves, but the image of Joan that he had in his mind was intense and vital.

He hardly realized it himself, but his heart was at war against his reason, and the struggle tore him with storms of deep emotion.

He knew beyond all doubt, for he had his dead brother's own letters to prove it, that it was with Joan Durand Frank had been infatuated, and was it not her photograph he himself had taken from Frank's hand cold in death? Logic and reason told him clearly she must have been concerned in that horrid murder; and his heart answered that her eyes were true, and her mouth was tender, and her bearing gracious and noble, and her hair a wonder to perceive.

Is she taking me also in her net? he said to himself with a groan.

He set himself with all his force to fight down these new feelings of his—setting his will against his emotion—unequal battle! He swore again that she who had destroyed Frank his brother in body and in soul, who had even driven him to theft and dishonor and death, should not go unpunished.

He had long since taken back his motor car to the place where he kept it, and as the previous night he had spent sleepless sitting in his chair, grimly resolute, so this one he spent in fierce and restless pacing of the London streets. Beggars whined at him unheard, unseen policemen eyed him suspiciously, the dark prowlers of the night followed him in unfilled hopes to be worn down by his restless speed, and when morning came he went back to his rooms and he said to himself that nothing should turn him from the path on which he had set his foot. A tremulous anxiety filled him for the next time when he should stand face to face with Joan Durand.

He forced himself to bathe and shave and he had scarcely finished his toilet—he was still examining rather grimly in the mirror his haggard countenance and bloodshot eyes, on which two sleepless nights and all the strain of emotion he had endured had left their mark, when his old landlady tapped at the door with the information that a lady wished to see him.

A lady? repeated Thorold astonished; a lady this time? Did she say what she wanted?

She said as it was something most particular, the old woman answered, and she said as her name was Joan Durand, which she said as you would know, sir.

Dining With Traitors

Lord Charles Beresford's outburst against 'dining with traitors' recalls the vehement political hatred of the past, says the London Chronicle. Coke of Norfolk used to tell how his grandfather instructed him. Now, Tom, as long as you live, never trust a Tory, and would add, 'And I never have and never will. In more recent times the old Duke of Marlborough was much perturbed because Lord Randolph Churchill sometimes entertained Sir William Harcourt and Mr. Chamberlain. He could not understand, he said, how his son could cultivate social relations with persons of such pernicious opinions, and was quite sure that House of Commons traditions had greatly changed since he succeeded.

Diggs—My wife is a wonderful vocalist. Why, I have known her to hold her audience for hours—

Biggs—Get out!

Diggs—After which she would lay it in the cradle and rock it to sleep.

Bessie—Mamma has gone downtown to buy some watered silk. What do they use watered silk for, anyway?

Bobby—Dunno, but I guess they make bathing suits out of it.

The African Methodist Episcopal congregation was jubilating over the success of an outdoor festival. Gradually the jubilee toned down to a solemn debate as to the use to be made of the profits. When the general opinion seemed to be setting in favor of the purchase of a chandelier for the meeting house, Marse Ringer, the town roustabout, who had been greatly exalted by the jubilation, for the first time in his life spoke in meeting.

See heah, Mistah Pahson, said he, Ise agreeable, sah, Ise entirely agreeable wid the rest of de members, sah; but Ah would jes' like to ax one question, sah, jes' one. Ef we does git dis chandeliah, sah, if we does get it, who am a gwine to play on it? Dat is what ah like to know?

A politician gave his cousin, fresh from the 'ould sod, a job as smoke inspector. He was not instructed as to his duties, but told to go out and inspect.

At the end of his first month he made this report:

This is to certify that I have inspected the smoke of this city for the past thirty days I have to report that I have found plenty of smoke and that the smoke is of a good quality.

The other Sunday two small boys were industriously digging in a vacant lot, when a man who was passing stopped to give them a lecture.

Don't you know that it is a sin to dig on Sunday, unless it be a case of necessity? asked the good man.

Yes, sir, timidly replied one of the boys.

Then why don't you stop it?

Cause this is a case of necessity, replied the little philosopher. A feller can't fish without bait.

It's as sad to see a rich man with a poor appetite as it is to see a poor man who can't get to the lunch counter.

Clergyman—I have a hazy recollection of marrying you before.

Actress—You did, but not to this gentleman.

"LIKE MAGIC"

New Food Makes Wonderful Changes

When a man has suffered from dyspepsia so many years that he can't remember when he had a natural appetite, and then hits on a way out of trouble he may be excused for saying "It acts like magic."

When it is a simple, wholesome food instead of any one of a large number of so called remedies in the form of drugs, he is more than ever likely to feel as though a sort of miracle has been performed.

A Western man, in the delight of restored digestion, puts it in this way:

"Like magic, fittingly describes the manner in which Grape-Nuts relieved me of poor digestion, coated tongue and loss of appetite, of many years standing.

"I tried about every medicine that was recommended to me, without relief. Then I tried Grape-Nuts on the suggestion of a friend. By the time I had finished the fourth package, my stomach was all right, and for the past two months, I have been eating with a relish, anything set efore me. That is something had been unable to do previously for years.

"I am stronger than ever and I consider the effects of Grape-Nuts on a weak stomach as something really wonderful. It builds up the entire body as well as the brain and nerves." Name given by the Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Too Bad

The other night, as the last train was about to go out, an old farmer rushed into an already over-crowded compartment. It so happened that an occupant—a dandified young man—was one of his customers. By way of pleasantry the young man inquired what he had got in a small box under his arm.

Oh, said the farmer, a box of chalk.

I see, the young man replied, glancing with an air of wisdom at his fellow passengers, chalk for the milk, eh?

Not exactly, drawled the farmer slowly, but I've done so much chalking up for milk at your house that I have had to buy another box!

Housewife—Norah, how long did you boil these eggs?

Norah—Six minutes, mum, by the kitchen clock.

Housewife—Don't you remember I told you not more than four minutes and they are as hard as rocks.

Norah—Yis, mum, but the clock is two minutes slow, and sure, I had to make allowance for that.

Johnson—Bilkins is an awful bounder.

Jackson—Naturally; he made his money in rubber.

Frost—Some people are always borrowing trouble.

Snow—Probably no one will lend them anything else.

WHEN BABY CRIES

When the baby cries continually do not put it down for pure ugliness—that is not the baby's nature—it is to be happy and laughing. Every baby should cry on an average of fifteen or twenty minutes a day—that is how he strengthens his lungs. But mothers if your baby gives sharp piercing cries or low sobbing wails, he is in pain and needs attention. Nothing will relieve the little one so quickly as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels, expel worms, break up colds, and will make baby healthy and happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

Her exalted rank did not give Queen Victoria immunity from the trials of a grandmother. One of her grandsons, whose recklessness in spending money provoked her strong disapproval, wrote to the queen reminding her of his approaching birthday and delicately suggesting that money would be the most acceptable gift. In her own hand she answered, sternly reproving the youth for the sin of extravagance and urging upon him the practice of economy. His reply staggered her:

Dear grandma, it ran, thank you for your kind advice. I have sold the same for £5.

Mary Anne was an Irish girl who had obtained a situation in the home of a lady of title, who happened to have her mother-in-law, who was a dowager, stopping with her.

Now, Mary Anne, said the young mistress one morning, I am going to town, and if anyone calls you can tell them that I am out, but, she added, you can tell them that the dowager is at home.

Sometime after her departure a lady called and inquired for the mistress. Well, madam, replied Mary Anne, the mistress is out, but the badger is upstairs.

There was one young man, said the chaplain thoughtfully, who seemed to regard my opening prayer with the deepest attention. He showed a degree of nervous impatience that was almost painful, and when I concluded—I made the petition a little longer on his account—I am positive his overwrought feelings were relieved by a sigh that was almost startling. I looked for him afterward, but he had gone. A young man with light hair and eyes and an obtuse nose—do you know him?

Sure I do, replied the doortender. He was waiting for the copy of your stuff for one of the afternoon papers—and he had to get over in time for the noon edition.

Edith—What if you don't have any children?

Nora—Well, then, in that case it will do for my grandchildren.

WAITERS WAGES

Many Receive None at all—Some Make Big Money

The statement made recently to the effect that although head waiters sometimes pay proprietors of notels and restaurants as much as $50 a week for their positions, they are able to live in style, have house property, motor cars and servants is no exaggeration. Many waiters' positions, thanks to the generosity of the public in the matter of tips, are most lucrative. At large establishments it is no common thing for the tips to average as much as $150 a day. This is pooled, the manager and the head waiter taking the lion's share, the remainder being divided among the cooks, chefs, and ordinary waiters of the establishment.

At one hotel the head waiter receives on an average about $100 a week from the pool, while $25 to $50 a week is frequently the head waiter's share of the tips in smaller establishments.

Two years ago there was a great demonstration in Hyde Park against the pooling system, a demand being made for the abolition of tips and an adequate wage. It was then declared that a head waiter at one large West end hotel, who had a salary of $40 a week, took in addition about $85 a week from the box in which the tips were placed. The ordinary waiters, however, who were paid $2.50 a week only received another $2.50 as their share of the tips.

In some hotels and restaurants the rule is for the head waiter to take two shares to every one of the ordinary waiters from the pool, and this accounts for the disproportion of the share-out. It is estimated that in the busiest time a waiter's share of the tips in a good class hotel would amount to about $15 per week, out of which he has to pay the proprietor certain commission for the job, receiving of course, no wages.

In New York hotel tipping has reached an extraordinary scale. A short time ago an action was taken against a certain hotel by a man who declared that an attempt was being made to break what he termed his hat and coat checking contract. Evidence showed that he paid no less than $1500 a year to the management for the privilege of taking care of the cloak-room and that another man was trying to acquire the privilege by offering $2000. It also transpired that the worth of the job was about $5,000 a year in tips. In larger New York hotels an even greater price is charged for a cloak-room contract, in one case it being as much as $4500.

Wife Was Artful

A good story is that about a man who one day told his wife he would give her all the silver pieces she found in his purse or pockets which were coined the year she was born.

As a result the lady in due course of time had quite an amount of silver on hand—so much, in fact, that she went to the bank and deposited it in her name.

Then speaking to the cashier the lady said:

My husband tells me you are going to pay him some money today. Won't you please pay him in this silver I have just deposited? I will be so much obliged to you if you will.

Of course the cashier, being noted for his courtesy to the ladies, quickly replied that he would be happy to please her.

As a result the lady has still more birthday money.

A wonderful vessel in many respects is the new Cunard liner Aquitania, which was launched a few days ago on the Clyde. It is the largest vessel ever built in this country, and every precaution which human ingenuity could suggest has been taken to make the mighty ship invulnerable to accidents. Throughout the greater part of the vessel there is a ship within a ship. In other words, there are two shells, the space between them being about 15ft., the inner as well as the outer shell being watertight. Lifeboats, including two motor-boats, have been installed to accommodate every passenger on board. Some idea of the size of the Aquitania may be gathered from the fact that it will easily accommodate 4,000 passengers and will have a crew of 1,200, the complement of a first-class battleship.

A novel feature of a wedding celebrated at St. John's Church, Brooklands, near Manchester, a few days ago, was the singing by the bride's sister of the well-known sentimental song: 'Because,' during the signing of the register.

Six men worked two days in kneading and baking a loaf of bread weighing 3981b. and measuring 4ft. high by 13ft. long at Kansas City. The loaf, which was made from ninety samples of Oklahoma and Kansas flour, is to be exhibited in England.

Canada is taking the lead in the matter of prison reform. A prison farm has been established at Guelph, in the Province of Ontario, which wears the semblance of a prosperous agricultural settlement. The prisoners wear ordinary clothes. They are merely confined within a prescribed area, being otherwise free. The foreman carries no arms. Games are provided and allowed. Even the sleeping apartments are without bolts and bars. The discipline appeals to the better nature of the prisoners, and so far with striking success. It is stated that a similar prison farm is about to be established by the Government of the Province of Alberta, near Big Island, on the River Saskatchewan.

ACHING LUMBAGO BACKS ARE QUICKLY HELPED AND PERMANENTLY CURED

Release, Yes, and a Cure for Lumbago is Now Known.

YOU CAN EASILY PROVE THIS

To cure Lumbago — surely it's a good thing to know how. His information meant to Jno. E. Neave the difference between invalidism and robust health. Writing from his home near Cornwall, he says:—"A severe and prolonged attack of Lumbago in my youth rendered me at all times liable to aches in the back and loins. So established became the predisposition, and so frequent the attacks, I confess I accepted the condition as my particular weakness to be borne with as much composure as any evil circumstances might permit. One day an unusually bad attack developed, and unfortunately there was no medicine of any kind in the house. I sent to a neighbor for help and received with a strong recommendation a bottle of Nerviline. My friend was surprised we didn't use Nerviline, saying that they found use for it in their family almost every day. So quickly did Nerviline check the attack, and so grateful was the relief, that I was in a day on the high road to recovery. I have cured my tendencies to Lumbago with Nerviline, and consider it the most powerful pain-subduing liniment ever made.

For curing colds, hoarseness, tight chest and winter ills Nerviline is a marvel; as for Lumbago, Sciatica and Rheumatism, Nerviline is considered to be without a peer. In the home it is especially valuable, because it cures cramps in half a minute, stops nausea, controls vomiting and upset stomach. For internal or external use, wherever there is pain, apply Nerviline. Get the 50c. family size bottle; trial size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.

Well Drugged

A doctor was summoned to a police station to examine an unconscious prisoner. The prisoner, very muddy and dishevelled, lay on the floor of the cell. The physician bent over and examined him, and then, rising, said, in a loud, stern voice:

This man's condition is not due to drink. He has been drugged.

A policeman turned pale, and said in a timid, hesitating voice:

I'm afraid ye're right, sir. I drugged him all the way—a matter of a hundred yards or more.

Some Method

Don't you think, dear, began Mr. Comfy, that our next door neighbors the Scrubbs, are putting on a great deal too much style, considering the fact that they never know from day to day where the next meal is coming from?

Well, replied Mrs. Comfy, you see, the more style they put on the more likely they are to be invited out to dinner.

Mrs. Flitterby—So you are on the visiting committee of your social workers' society I should think you'd find it dreadfully irksome, making all those slum calls.

Mrs. Hunter-Fadde—I'm willing to make the sacrifice for a good cause. Every visiting day I send my maid around with my cards.

A teacher told one of her boys that the next time he wrote a composition there must be some point to it. The subject of his next disquisition was Needles.

Her Friend —I suppose, now that you are married your husband doesn't bring you flowers any more?

Mrs. Youngbride—Oh, yes he does! Only last night he brought home a cauliflower.

ONTARIO WOMAN'S FORTUNE

Freed From That Weak, Languid, Always Tired Feeling, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Thessalon, Ont.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a blessing to women, and I cannot speak highly enough of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, Thessalon, Ont.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you are sick and need such a medicine, why don't you try it?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

CROWNING AN AFRICAN KING

Civilized Rulers Would not Relish Such Ceremonies

The custom of savage peoples make up in curious picturesqueness what they lack in dignity. Contrast, for instance, the ceremonial with the coronation of a British king or the induction of President Wilson into office.

The king was chosen from among the people by the elders, and was selected for his wisdom. The ceremonies of disenthronement were such that he required not only wisdom, but also courage, physical strength and superb digestion. The man's first intimation that he had been chosen by the tribe was an onrush of the entire tribe—not to do him honor, but to abuse and insult him in every possible way.

They would hurl opprobious epithets at him, curse him, spit upon him and pelt him. For, they said, from this time on he could do all these things to them and they would be powerless to retaliate. It was their last chance.

They also reminded him of all his failings in graphic and minute particulars. If the king survived this treatment he was then taken to the former king's house, where he was solemnly invested with the insignia of the kingly office in the shape of a silk hat. No one except the king was permitted to wear a silk hat.

Following the inauguration ceremonies, the people came and bowed before the new king in humble submission, while they praised him as enthusiastically as they had reviled him. Then he was fed and feted for a week, during which time he was not permitted to leave his house, but had to receive guests from all parts of his dominion and eat with them all. These ceremonies ended, he turned to the comparatively easy and commonplace duties of his kingly office.

Old Lady (to driver of growler)—Now, driver, I want you to go very carefully.

Certainly, mum.

And not go racing with other cabs.

No, mum.

And not go round the corners quickly.

No, mum.

After the job, the old lady handed him a shilling, saying:

You have driven me very carefully and well, and here is a shilling for you. Have you driven a cab all your life?

No, mum; I used to drive a hearse, and blest if I don't go back to it; it is a better game than this. I hope I'll drive yer again, mum.

A New Dish

A captain of one of H.M. ships had received a goose from a friend, and as he had guests coming to dinner that evening, ordered of his steward that it should be cooked.

Later in the day the guests signalled their inability to be present, whereupon the captain—through his steward—ordered that the goose should be postponed.

At dinner, much to the captain's surprise, on removing the lid of a dish, he found a portion of the goose hashed. The following conversation then took place.

Captain—I thought I told you, steward, to tell cook we would postpone the goose?

Steward—Yes, sir. I told him.

Captain—Quartermaster, tell my Maltese cook I want him.

Cook arrives.

Yes, sar. You want me?

Captain—Did you receive my orders to postpone this goose?

Cook—Yes, sar.

Captain—Then why didn't you carry them out?

Cook—I did, sar. That am postponed goose!

Percy had matrimonial designs on a beautiful and rich heiress. If he could only give her a demonstration of his bravery he knew that he would have a little justification in proposing to her. At length a brilliant idea occurred to him. He was strolling with her along the waterside when he suddenly turned to his fair companion.

I say—aw—Miss Teresa. Could you—aw—manage to fall in so that—aw—I could wescue you?

The fair Miss Teresa looked surprised.

But you can't swim, can you? she said.

Percy was confused for a moment, then a happy inspiration came to him.

I'm afraid I can't swim: but I always carry a police whistle, don't you know.

Met His Match

Dr. C— prided himself on being a man of few words, and of a sharp, terse, decisive character. He successfully endeavored to give the most emphatic instructions at a minimum expense of time and words. Therefore, his women patients often irritated him by their volubility.

A lady came one day with a hand much swollen and scarred.

Burn? queried Dr. C— sharply.

Bruise.

Poultice immediately.

The patient went home without further bother and returned next day.

Better? asked the doctor brusquely.

Worse.

More poultice.

And the patient disappeared, but called a few days later.

Improvement? snapped the doctor.

Well. Fee?

Nothing! exclaimed the doctor. I have met my match in the most sensible woman I ever met. Morning!

Deadly Work

Sir Robert Edgecumbe gives an ancient jibe this local edge and setting:

A Dorset doctor of somewhat boastful temperament was dining one day at a big dinner party, when the conversation after dinner turned upon the army as a profession. The doctor remarked that his parents had made a great mistake in not sending him into the army, for which he declared himself eminently fit.

Oh, you make a great mistake, said a Dorset squire across the table; you would not have killed half as many if you had gone into the army as you have in your own profession.

Smart Business

A customer walked into a boot shop recently and asked for a pair of boots. The assistant, a youth of fourteen showed him a suitable pair, the price being $5. The customer stated that he only had $3 with him, and inquired if he could pay that and bring the other $2 next day. He was told that he could do so. After the customer, who was a stranger, had left the premises, the proprietor severely reprimanded the assistant for allowing the man to take the boots, saying he would never see him again.

Ay, but I shall, replied the smart youth. I wrapped up two boots for the left foot, so he's bound to come back.

Crafty

Old Gent—Well, sonny, did you take your dog to the vet next door to your house, as I suggested?

Boy—Yes, sir.

Old Gent—And what did he say?

Boy—'E said Towser was suffering from nerves, so Sis had better give up playin' the pianner.

She—Poor George is out of his misery now. He—Dear me! When did she die? She—Die? Who? He—Why, his wife.

Does your husband run after the women?

Yes, he's been a cook-chaser for years, said Mrs. Suburbs, composedly.

Here's an item, observed Rivers who was looking over the newspapers, to the effect that the King of Sweden raises prize dogs on his farm.

I suppose he uses them, suggest Brooks, to drive his Stockholm.

Moneylender—You want to borrow a hundred pounds? Well, here's the money. I charge five per cent. a month, and as you want it for a year that leaves just forty pounds coming to you.

Innocent Borrower—Then if I wanted it for two years, there'd be something coming to you, I suppose, eh?

No one need endure the agony of corns with Holloway's Corn Cure at hand to remove them.

A Georgia woman who moved to Philadelphia found she could not be contented without the colored mammy who had been her servant for many years. She sent for mammy, and the servant arrived in due season. It so happened that the Georgia woman had to leave town, the very day mammy arrived. Before departing she had just time to explain to mammy the modern conveniences with which her apartment was furnished. The gas stove was the contrivance which interested the colored woman most. After the mistress of the household had lighted the oven the broiler, and the other burners and felt certain the old servant understood its operations, the mistress hurried for her train.

She was absent two weeks and one of her first questions to mammy was how she had worried along.

De finest ever, was the reply, and you know, Miss Florence, dat fire ain't gone out yit.

STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACH

Can Only Be Had Through Rich Red Blood.

When the blood is poor and thin and the stomach in consequence is imperfectly supplied with oxidized blood and nerve force, the digestive process becomes slow and fermentations of the food goes on, with the formation of gas and certain acids. The pressure of the gas causes pain in the stomach; sometimes it affects the heart. When the gas is belched out through the mouth the patient is temporarily relieved, the sour risings in the throat, and the burning sensations in the throat and stomach are caused by the acid fermentations. There are plenty of things to neutralize these acids, or to "sweeten the stomach" as it is called, but they do not cure the trouble. Pure, rich blood which will tone up the stomach and enable it to do the work nature intended it to do is the only road to a cure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich, red blood—that is why they cure even the most obstinate cases of indigestion. The following is a bit of proof. Miss Minnie Greene, of Hall's Bridge, Ont., says: "About a year ago I was greatly troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate caused me pain and distress. I would feel as though I was starved, but when meal time came the sight of food caused a feeling of loathing. There were days when I could not even hold milk on my stomach, and my head would ache so that I could hardly keep from screaming. Only those who have suffered from stomach trouble know the torture I suffered. I tried almost every remedy recommended, but found not the least benefit until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These I used for a couple of months and they worked a perfect cure and I am again enjoying good health and able to eat freely all kinds of food."

If you are suffering from indigestion or any other trouble due to poor watery blood, begin to cure yourself today by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The man of whom we were told went into a downtown restaurant a noon or so ago and ordered a substantial luncheon. He ate it growlingly and when he had finished and received his check marched up to the cashier's desk and slapped down a fine looking bank note.

It was a Confederate bill and the cashier was not slow to detect it. She pushed it back to the customer.

This is no good, she said scornfully.

Neither was the lunch, answered the patron. Keep the change, however.

You appear to find the observation of persons interesting.

Yes; I am very successful in finding people out, said the stranger, who had been watching the crowd.

Don't forget to visit the garden party to be given by the Women's Auxilary of St. Andrews' Church in the grounds of Mrs. Jowett's residence on the reserve on Friday evening, June 27th, admission 25c.

Yesterday Chief Chas. Marshall was taken to Calgary by his mother and brother, where he is to undergo an operation, many friends being at the station to see him off. "Charlie" appeared much better than his many friends expected, and all hope for his speedy recovery.

The good people of Standard are preparing to royally celebrate Dominion Day, and have issued a poster announcing a good day's sport. The chief excitement is to be a base ball match between Cluny and Standard, horse racing, foot racing, athletic sports, and in the evening a grand display of fireworks will be given and a dance.

The Namaka Farmers' Union announce a pic-nic at Hammer Hill on Dominion Day, Tuesday, July 1st, and invite all their friends to join them. Among other sporting events will be a base ball match between the Hammer Hill Twirlers and the Namaka Giants. This game is expected to be one of the fastest of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. John King, of Winnipeg, spent Tuesday night visiting her brothers and sister in Gleichen, Mrs. A. E. Beaupre and Messrs. J. J. and Chas. Marshall. They are returning east after spending the winter in California. They came from the west with Pastor Russell's excursion and left yesterday to join the party at Regina.

W. H. Fairfield, superintendent of the Dominion Experimental station for southern Alberta, expects to spend the week from July 21st to July 26th in the Gleichen district judging the different tracts in the C. P. R. Alfalfa competition. Mr. Fairfield advises that the 1912 fields be cut as early as possible so that all will have a good crop on the date of judging.

Everybody is happy over the weather conditions of the past week and now a good harvest is assured so far as moisture is concerned. The first heavy shower after the prolonged dry spell started in on Wednesday night of last week and more or less rain has fallen every twenty-four hours since until now the entire country has had a thorough soaking. It seems the general opinion in this district that a good crop is assured, but not the bumper one we usually look forward to. The previous dry weather undoubtedly will result in a thinner crop than might have otherwise been expected.

New Trial Being Ordered

The appeal in the Collard-Armstrong breach of promise case was formally dismissed by the supreme court with Mr. Justice Walsh dissenting. Reasons were given by the several judges who heard the appeal, and there was considerable doubt as to the amount of damages which are now allowed to the injured woman, Anna Collard, who is now Mrs. Henley-Lewis.

Mr. Justice Walsh, who dissented, stated in his judgment that the fact that the plaintiff's counsel had waived claim to $14,000 of the damages did not alter the decision of the jury in the trial and he held that there should be a reference to another jury on the matter of damages without reference on any other point in connection with the case. Such a proceedure is quite common in such cases, a new jury being called, not to try the whole case again, but to decide the amount of damages. Judge Walsh held the damages were out of all proportion.

The other three judges did not deem so, and yet, unlike Judge Walsh, they were of the opinion that the sum of $6,000, as consented to by the plaintiff, was all that was allowed. Judge Beck quoted some interesting decisions on this point, to the effect that the appeal court could not change the amount of damages without ordering a new trial unless an arrangement was made before the appeal was heard. On the advice of the court, G. H. Ross, for the plaintiff, had made a statement that he would accept less before the appeal went on. Judge Walsh was of the opinion that it stood otherwise, as the defendan had not consented to the decision.

There were three grounds of appeal: the first was the admission of character evidence. It was held that this was out of the general kind that was inadmissible. The second was that of misdirection on the part of Mr. Justice Simmonds in the address to the jury. That the seduction in the case was not an aggravation of the complaint was held to be rather in the interest of the defendant, and therefore could not be regarded as a ground for appeal.

The excessive nature of the damages was not agreed in by the three Judges as against Judge Walsh. Chief Justice Harvey pointed to the fact that Armstrong said he had a bank credit of $25,000, and a man who had that was a man who should not have fear of a sum like $20,000. The general principle in law was that a woman who had been deserted in a promise of marriage had a reasonable claim to a part of the man's wealth both for her maintenance in a position like his wife would enjoy, and for her son in such a case as the present.

An appeal to Ottawa is likely in this case as Armstrong, it is stated, is far from contented with the way in which things have gone.
